

School Central Library Is Book 'Supermarket'

Librarians are completing arrangement of books, films and other materials in the Torrance Unified School District's new "supermarket of knowledge." With completion of the new $400,000 Educational Materials Building at 2336 Plaza, del Amo, across from the Board of Education offices, employees are completing the move from a warehouse where the library previously was housed.

Teachers will be able to browse through the library, pushing a market-type basket, to pick out books, films and pictures which will help them in their classrooms. They will be able to choose from a stock of about 100,000 books and magazines, including 8000 separate titles, and some 8000 records, tapes, films, slides, film strips, pictures and models.

The selections are made super-market fashion. At the front desk Miss Jones can pick up a market-type basket cart and push it through the stacks, picking the books and other materials she needs.

There is equipment for her to listen to the records and preview the films, film strips and slides to see if it is what she wants.

When Miss Jones has picked out the material, she pushes the cart to the front desk for check-out. She can either take it with her or else conveyor belts will carry it to the processing area, where it will be delivered to the school the next day.

The new building has complete facilities for packaging and delivering the books to each school every day.

The district uses a central library to provide books and materials for the 23 local elementary schools rather than maintaining a separate library for each school. There are several reasons for this:

1. The district can buy a greater variety of books which will be used more often. Maintaining separate libraries at each school would mean fewer total titles less often used.

2. Teachers can pick out special books, film or other aids which they need for their particular classes, without waiting for the order to come from some other town.

It is cheaper to maintain a central library than separate libraries at each school. The 18,000-square-foot building is designed to serve up to 40 schools. If separate libraries were built at each school, each would have to be about 1000 square feet. The central library staff also is smaller than would be required each of the 23 schools.

The building is designed to house all the books and other instructional materials which the district will need in the foreseeable future.

Registrations are now being accepted at the Torrance Recreation Dept. and a maximum of 30 will be allowed each session.

A special summer series of art lessons will be held at the old city hall in the new Craft Center. Under direction of Moni Gillett, three sessions will be held each consisting of six lessons of one hour and 15 minutes each. There is a $5 fee, which covers the cost of equipment used and instruction.

Children between the ages of 6 and 9 years will meet from 9 to 10:15 a. m. and those from 10 to 15 years will meet from 10:30 to 12 noon. Dates for the sessions are as follows: June 24 through July 10, July 15 through July 31, and Aug. 5 through Aug. 31. Each class meets twice a week on Tuesday and Thursday.
